COLA BILL INTRODUCED

In a letter to members of the State Employees Retirement System (SERS) and the Public School Employees System (PSERS) dated Jan. 13, 2006, Lynn Herman, State Representative for the 77th Legislative District, outlined a proposed Cost Of Living Adjustment (COLA) bill that he introduced as House Bill 2339. The bill would establish a “two-tiered” COLA with long-term retirees receiving a COLA in 2006 and more recent retirees receiving a COLA in 2007. Similar to the most recent (2002-2003) COLA, the new bill would provide the most long-term retirees with the largest percentage increase. The proposed percentage factors used to determine the amount of the COLA are as follows:

<table>
<tr>

GREETINGS FROM THE PRESIDENT

We adopted a new constitution this past year that changed our leadership positions and their term of office. The president now serves for two years rather than the one year served in the past. We combined the first vice president and the second vice president positions into a president-elect position, which is Jim Rodgers. He also serves for two years. This change was recommended by our PSU advisors to add more continuity to our leadership. The president-elect position is responsible for our six bimonthly programs.

Jim Rodgers, Gifford Albright (our past president), and I attended the Big Ten Retirees Association Annual Meeting at Michigan State University at the Kellogg Center on August 19-21, 2005. We presented our two reports on Volunteering and Recruitment of New Members. Since we will be the host to the Big Ten meeting in 2007 we were careful to observe how the meeting was run, what programs and topics were emphasized, the entertainment, and what side trips were taken. Jim and I took our wives along and they witnessed the spousal arrangements. Upon arriving home Jim Rodgers, who will be President in 2007, formed a Big Ten Planning Committee and immediately started plans for 2007. Twenty hotel rooms and appropriate meeting rooms have been reserved for the weekend of August 17, 2007 at the Nittany Lion Inn.

On Thursday, November 10, we heard a presentation from Devra Wolfe and Robin Oswald of the Penn State Office of Human Resources, Employee Benefits Division, on the subject of PSU retiree benefits. We had a record turn out; over two hundred people showed up. With Penn State planning to make changes and the new federal drug program, this subject is of extreme importance to us retirees. The meeting was scheduled to correspond with the time the benefits office sends out the “Time To Choose” packets. We have scheduled Devra and Robin for next November because they claim Penn State intends to make changes and choices may have to be made next December.

On January 12 we heard an excellent talk by Harry H. West, Professor Emeritus of Civil Engineering, on Beaver Stadium: How did it come to be? His talk traced Penn State football from 1887 to the present time. He supported his talk with a rich series of photographs and information. We suggested that he make a tape of his presentation because we are sure many of you would have liked to hear it.

On March 9, Lynn Herman, our Pennsylvania State Representative from the 77th District spoke to us about proposed legislation of interest including the new proposed cost-of-living-allowance (COLA) legislation for cost of living increases, which Lynn has co-sponsored. It is referred to as House Bill 2339, and there is a sense that this may be a good year for COLA legislation. Lynn suggests that we all write a letter to Representative Paul Clymer, Chairman House State Government Committee, requesting that he bring House Bill 2339 before the Committee for consideration. His address is Room 216, Ryan Office Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120, (pclymer@pahousegop.com). House Bill 2339 does not address the needs for spousal cost of living increases. If this is a concern of yours you could also let Paul Clymer know.

Of particular interest is that Lynn Herman has announced that he will be retiring from office this year. We particularly want to thank him for his support on our behalf, and we have sent him an official thank you letter from the Penn State Retirees Faculty/Staff Club. You may also wish to thank him yourself.

Until we meet again,
Ralph Mumma

Retirees who still have a PSU Access Account can take advantage of Travel Services Online, the University’s online booking tool. The service includes the Big Ten National Care Rental agreement. Also, retired emeritus employees may continue to carry the PSU American Express Corporate Card. Check out the recently redesigned web site at www.travel.psu.edu.
Club’s Student Emergency Fund Applauded by Penn State

Six years ago, the Retired Faculty/Staff Club established a Student Emergency Fund to help needy students. Here are excerpts from a recent letter from the Penn State Office of Student Aid:

“The Office of Student Aid would like to thank the Retired Faculty Staff Club for their commitment of $500 a year to assist students who find themselves in difficult financial circumstances.

In April of this year your funds enabled us to rescue one student. The Retired Faculty Staff Grant provided the means for this student to seek much needed medical attention. Penn State’s Office for Educational Equity contacted the Office of Student Aid to request financial assistance for a student suffering from severe but treatable depression, according to the doctors. An evaluation indicated the need for counseling, testing, and medication. $225 from your fund allowed this student to receive the treatment that doctors prescribed, treatment that enabled the student to continue with his studies and finish the semester.

‘I can’t even begin to tell you how thankful I am for helping me to get this help,’ the student wrote to the Office for Educational Equity. ‘You made the difference.’

This student is on track to graduate in May 2006.

Penn State is grateful for your commitment. You are touching the lives of college students in tangible and intangible ways. When circumstances arise, we look to your available funds.”

YOUR HELP IS NEEDED

The Student Emergency Fund currently has limited funds and would appreciate your financial support. We would like to collect enough money to fund one or two students a year like the one described in the above letter.

You can help by making a contribution to the Student Emergency Fund using the “Sign Me Up Today” form in this newsletter. Your donation will make a big impact on some student’s life.

“Update on PSU Retiree Benefits”
In January 2002 the University Faculty Senate legislated that the retired faculty of the University be represented on the Senate. The two members currently serving are Herberita Lundegren, whose term expires in 2008, and Donald Rung, who will serve through 2010.

The retired senators meet regularly with the executive committee and the members of the Retired Faculty/Staff Club.

Lundegren, who joined the Penn State faculty in 1960, is professor emerita of Hotel, Restaurant and Recreation Management, and senior associate dean emerita of the College of Health and Human Development. A senator from 1963-1972 and from 1977-1994, she chaired the Senate in 1984-1985. She currently serves on the Faculty Affairs Committee.

2006 Retiree Benefits Fair

This year the Retiree Benefits Fair will be held on Tuesday, September 5, 2006 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at The Penn Stater Conference Center.

The annual Retiree Benefits Fair is a great one-stop shop for information on the University’s new and continuing programs for retirees. The PSU Office of Human Resources brings together professionals and volunteers in nearly every aspect of retiree life to offer information and answer questions from both retirees and those thinking about retiring.

The theme this year will be Health Care Options as many retirees are examining their current health plan options and anticipating the University’s new options to be unveiled soon.

Last year’s Fair was a success with more than 20 presentation sessions and many informational booths on such topics as financial services, local services for seniors, and educational programs at the University and in the community. Many attendees took advantage of free services that day—blood pressure tests, bone density tests, and backrubs, among others. Many also learned about the Retired Faculty/Staff Club at an information table staffed by your officers.

Be sure to put the Benefits Fair on your calendar for Tuesday, September 5, 2006 and take your questions with you. It’s a great way to stay on top of your benefits.

A sk John Ziegler how he became so involved in the community, and you will find a simple answer.
Someone asked him.

Then ask people all around Centre County how they have become involved in volunteering and the answer might be, “John asked me.”

For more than 30 years Ziegler has been helping Centre Region community organizations develop and thrive. He has held leadership posts with the Retired Faculty and Staff Club, Clearwater Conservancy, the Centre County Historical Society, the Center County Chapter of the Penn State Alumni Association, and Global Connections, a non-profit that promotes international cultural exchange in Centre County.

Ziegler’s current activities also include RSVP, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program. Part of the Corporation for National and Community Service, the local RSVP effort is operated out of the Centre County Office of Aging. RSVP connects active adult volunteers, 55 and better, with volunteer opportunities. This group taps into one of John’s passions—helping people find the best volunteer opportunity for them.

“It’s fun,” Ziegler said. “I tell them what the job is, why it’s fun, what the benefits are, why they’re needed.” He adds, “If you want someone to do a job, you pursue them and make sure they know it’s important.”

Carter Ackerman, chairman of the publicity and communications committee of the Retired Faculty/Staff Club, said, “John recruited me for vice-president of the PSU Retired Faculty/Staff Club many years ago when the club had lost two vice-presidents through untimely deaths. I had to take over the presidency of the club only six months later. I respected John, and his volunteer work, and I felt that if he thought it was important enough to give his time, I would be willing to give some of mine. It turned out to be a great decision because my wife and I have made many good friends over the years through our work with the club.”

John’s own volunteer experience started well before retirement. “I didn’t go out looking for a volunteer position. It just happened,” Ziegler said.

Years ago, when the old Lutheran church at the intersection of College Avenue and Atherton Street was torn down, Penn State students sat in the surrounding trees so that they wouldn’t be bulldozed. Some people in the community decried the students’ actions. John wrote a letter to the editor saying the students shouldn’t be up in the trees. He said local people should climb up and save those trees themselves.

After the letter appeared in the newspaper, John got a call from an acquaintance who was involved in College Township activities. She asked if he would serve on the local zoning hearing board. He did and served the township for 11 years, including a term as council chairman. While he had been involved in church and school activities throughout his adult life, John’s work in local government 30 years ago launched him into a trajectory of volunteerism that has included leadership posts in more than ten organizations.

Over the years, John has done everything from making soup for special events, to helping international students with their taxes, to leading burgeoning organizations on the path to effective management and financial solvency.

A Penn State graduate and thirty-three year faculty member in the College of Agricultural Sciences, Ziegler taught animal science and meats courses and helped organize what is now known as the Department of Food Science. He retired in 1987. He and his wife Jane enjoy having all three of their sons and daughters-in-law living in Pennsylvania, two of the couples in Centre County. They have six grandchildren.

Asked what motivates him to give so much time and energy to the community, Ziegler answers, “I have been married for 56 years, have great sons and family, and a wonderful place to live. You can’t say that you deserve all this. You should be doing something to help out.”
The Penn State Retired Faculty/Staff Club will be the host of the Big 10 Retirees Association 16th annual conference in 2007. The dates for the conference will be from Friday to Sunday, August 17-19, 2007. The conference will be held at the Nittany Lion Inn. The theme of the conference will be “Wellness” in all its senses: physical, mental and financial. There will be a reception open to all members of the Penn State Retired Faculty/Staff Club on Friday evening, and a dinner open to those members on Saturday evening. This will be the second time that this conference has been hosted at Penn State. The first was in 1997. Look for more details about the conference in next year’s national edition of Postscript.

MAGINNIS FACILITATES FACULTY AND STAFF GIFTS

In response to the tremendous philanthropic support Penn State has received over the years from its faculty and staff, last fall the University’s Office of Planned Giving and Endowments dedicated its newest associate to working with faculty and staff who are making deferred gifts to the University.

Associate Planned Giving Officer Kristen Maginnis works with donors and their advisors by answering questions and providing calculations and legal documentation. She strives to help donors plan a gift that will generate the greatest possible tax and income benefits to the donor and the University. Gifts are typically structured as gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, bequests, insurance, and retirement plan assets.

By dedicating a staff member to faculty and staff charitable gift questions, the Office of Planned Giving and Endowments hopes to demonstrate how grateful Penn State is for all the support the University receives from its faculty and staff. For more information on making a planned gift to the University, contact Kristen toll free at 1-888-800-9170 or at kmm123@psu.edu.

Medlar Field at Lubrano Park

The 2006 Penn State baseball team will be the last to play on Beaver Field, as construction of Medlar Field at Lubrano Park should be completed in June 2006. The new facility will be shared with the State College Spikes, a minor-league team acquired by the Altoona Curve franchise.

Medlar Field at Lubrano Park will stand near the intersection of Curtin and Porter Roads and will boast views of the Bryce Jordan Center, Beaver Stadium, and Mount Nittany over centerfield wall. The stadium will seat approximately 6,000 people with traditional stadium seats and a grass seating area. Spectators will be able to utilize a 500-space parking facility that is accessible from Porter Road and Park Avenue, and they may also use the Bryce Jordan parking lot. In addition, concession areas, media centers, personal and corporate suites, and indoor and outdoor training facilities will encompass Medlar field.

The largest private contribution of $2.5 million was made by Anthony Lubrano, a Penn State alumnus who was a member of the baseball team under the late Coach Charles “Chuck” Medlar. Medlar is the second winningest coach in University history, with a record of 312-141-6 and an appearance in the 1967 College World Series.

In addition to the Lubrano gift, Medlar Field at Lubrano Park will be financed by a combination of state, local, and private support. Intercollegiate Athletics will raise $5 million through their Success with Honor campaign. The Centre County Industrial Development Authority has secured up to $15 million in matching funds from the state under Pennsylvania Act 40.

For more information about Medlar Field at Lubrano Park, contact John Powell, associate athletics director for development and corporate sponsors, at jcp7@psu.edu or 1-800-NITTANY.

PSU Places Second in Directors’ Cup

After an impressive 2005 fall sports season, Penn State placed second in the United States Academy Sports Directors’ Cup (also known as the Sears Directors’ Cup). The award honors the top four all-sports champions in the NCAA Divisions I, II, and III, and the NAIA.

This year for Division I, Notre Dame finished first with 412 points, Penn State was second with 308.5 points, Stanford in third with 282 points, and Duke round out the top four with 280 points. Points are based on success in both men’s and women’s sports.

The winner in each division receives a Waterford crystal trophy from Sears and a $5,000 postgraduate scholarship. The program annually provides $205,000 in postgraduate scholarships.

Penn State placed third nationally in Division I-A football and women’s soccer, and ninth nationally in women’s field hockey, men’s soccer, and women’s volleyball. Penn State last placed in the top three for the Sears Director’s Cup in 2002.

Penn State’s fall sports compiled a 49-1 conference record en route to an unprecedented five Big Ten titles. No other institution had ever won more than three fall Big Ten titles in one year.
Construction and remodeling are ongoing processes at Penn State. Some of the newly completed projects on the University Park campus include: The building housing the School of Information Sciences and Technology, Chemistry building, Pasquerilla Spiritual Center, Technology Center expansion, Innovation Boulevard Building, Blue Band Building, Eastview Terrace Housing, Life Sciences building, Redifer Commons addition, Penn Stater addition, East Subcampus parking deck and Chiller building, Shortlidge Mall, Smeal College of Business Administration Building, Outreach Innovation building, School of Architecture and Landscape Architecture building, Willard Plaza, Schreyer Gardens, Pollock Road improvements, and the Alumni Gardens.

Current projects include: Foundry Park, Medlar Field in Lubrano Park, Recreation Hall Wrestling and Fitness Center Expansion, Food Sciences and new Creamery, and Forest Resources building.

Future projects include: Arboretum and Dickinson School of Law dual campus.

JILL ANDERSON AND SYD BROWN

Jill Grashof Anderson met her late husband, Kermit Anderson, while they were students at Penn State in the 1960’s. The couple went on to raise a family in a New Jersey suburb of New York City. The Andersons returned to State College over the years, and in July 2000 bought a townhouse to use for football weekends. They had one year to enjoy it before Kermit was killed in the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center. They were married 36 years.

Jill said that after her husband was killed, she spent time going back and forth between New Jersey and State College. With grown daughters in Florida and Arizona, she gradually found herself spending more time in State College. In 2003 she decided to make State College her permanent home.

“I really liked the people I was meeting here,” Jill said.

Syd Brown and his wife, Florence, spent nearly 40 years living and raising their five children in the Boston area. Syd spent 20 years in the U.S. Navy serving 12 years on nuclear submarines as Master Chief Machinist's Mate and Chief of Boat. This was followed by a career with Hartford Steam Boiler (HSB) Inspection and Insurance in Boston. In 2002, he lost Florence to cancer.

Syd found his way to State College in May, 2004, thanks to his daughter, Karen LaCorte, and her family. Her son was graduating from Penn State, and Syd decided to spend some time with them in Happy Valley.

Jill and Syd met during a line dance class sponsored by the Senior Center. They married in November 2005.

“We decided that our spouses up in heaven figured we needed each other,” Jill said.

Jill and Syd enjoy life in Centre County, taking advantage of the many cultural and athletic events. They bought a condo because they like traveling and knew they would be busy visiting their combined seven children and 13 grandchildren.

“We think the living choices are great here, and Pennsylvania doesn’t tax retirement income which is good to consider,” Jill said. She added, “We love this area. There is so much going on here. We haven’t begun to scratch the surface.”

HENRY AND BEA MELLINGER

Lock Haven, Pa, natives Henry ’49 and Bea ’54 Mellinger moved to the State College area eight years ago. In the mid-1950’s, the couple met at an alumni meeting hosted in Lock Haven by Bea’s father, Bill Berry ’22, and they later married and raised a family. Henry spent 40 years as an engineer with the Hammermill Paper Company and Bea taught elementary school for 35 years.

Bea said the couple raised their family in an older home that required a lot of maintenance. With their son married and took an interest in the family home, the Mellingers decided to look for something newer. Close friends had built in State College, so they decided to try State College, too.

“We knew the builder and knew exactly what we were going to get. We’re very satisfied with the home, location, everything,” Bea said of their condominium development.

They find it is easy to stay active. At the age of 83, Henry still swims or ice skates daily. Bea makes it her routine to spend time on campus.
Dwight and Carolyn Tothero

When Dwight and Carolyn Tothero left State College after graduating from Penn State in 1955, they were glad to get away. But when it came time to make plans for retirement, they were ready to come back. "We started to come back and found that every time we came here we enjoyed it," Dwight said. "It was our getaway place. Over the years we developed an appreciation for what it is."

The Totheros spend most of their adult life in York, Pa, and Decatur, IL, where Dwight was a vice president for York Automotive, a division of the Borg Warner Corporation. Carolyn taught swimming lessons. They raised three sons.

After being transferred to Illinois, they still came back to State College once or twice a year for football games. In 1992 they bought a townhouse and made Happy Valley their full-time home in 1995. Two years ago they moved into the Village at Penn State, the life care retirement community affiliated with the University.

"We are enjoying it," Carolyn said of their experience at the Village. "We are spoiled rotten. If anything needs to be done, we get on the phone and someone comes and does it."

Even though they had been away for almost 50 years, the Totheros found State College to be an easy place with which to get reacquainted. When they got here, they knew only their son who lives in town, a couple who were longtime friends, and a few folks at Penn State Alumni Association.

"Of all the communities we’ve lived in," Dwight said, "We have never gotten involved so quickly or so much as we have here.”

House Bill 2339 is pending before the House Senate Government Committee. In his letter Representative Herman encouraged us to write a letter of support for the bill to the committee chairman, Paul Clymer, requesting that he bring the bill before the committee for consideration in the near future. His name, address and e-mail address are:

Representative Paul Clymer, Chairman
House State Government Committee
Room 216, Ryan Office Building
Harrisburg, PA 17120
pclymr@pahousegop.com

In a presentation to the PSU Retired Faculty/Staff Club on March 9, 2006, Representative Herman expressed optimism that the bill would successful because it fits the pattern and timing of previous COLA bills. However, he also indicated that the other two proposed bills (a permanent, automatic yearly COLA based on the cost of living index and a COLA for spouses of deceased retirees), while still active, have only a limited chance of approval in the near future.

If you would like to see what the PA Legislators receive in salaries and yearly COLAs, go the Retired Faculty/Staff Club web site at www.psu.edu/org/retfsclub and look under: “Of Interest To Club Members”.
